Do you wonder about all the people and experiences that will help your toddler be ready to learn to read at age 5?

Join with other parents and a group of researchers at the Florida Center for Reading Research at Florida State University to answer these questions now! Be a part of a new study designed to uncover the secrets of children's early developmental success. To support this work: if you have a child ages 18-24 months old, fill out a brief survey.
